National oriented capital in the system of state management in Russia

K. Vodenko

The analysis of formation and development of nationally oriented capital in the system of state management in the framework of conceptual and social-practical parameters of this phenomenon is carried out. Proceeding from the understanding of nationally oriented capital as a vector of activity of economic actors aimed at the realization of national interests and priorities in the context of sustainable social and economic development, it is concluded that the system of public administration outlines approaches to stimulating and supporting nationally oriented capital, appropriate institutional, structural conditions. The complexity of this process is that there is a dual situation associated with the reproduction of the conflict of national and private, corporate interests, reproduced in the functioning organizations of Russian business.

Keywords: social and economic development of Russian society, public administration system, nationally oriented capital, market relations, state corporations
