Mergers and acquisitions in global markets

E. Novikova

The problems of organizing and conducting transactions on mergers and acquisitions of companies on a global scale are being resolved. The amount of funds raised in M&A transactions is huge. Increasingly, companies are resorting to this particular method of business restructuring. In the conditions of fierce competition, companies are looking for opportunities for diversification, expansion and access to additional assets, which is why this type of restructuring requires careful research both in the domestic market and in the world.

Keywords: mergers and acquisitions, restructuring, economic growth
