Metamorphoses of capital in the educational process: statement of the problem

Yu. Burtovaya, A. Shestakov

The institution of education can be characterized as a process of production, transfer and development of knowledge. Guided by this understanding, the author focuses on the personal components of this process – social, cultural and educational types of capital. Particular attention is paid to the role of the social and cultural capital of the individual in justifying the personal development track.

Keywords: educational capital, language codes, educational process, professional competencies
