

UDC: 001

Methodological conceptual conditions modeling the problem of freedom in the context of philosophical anthropology and philosophy of culture

E.V. Volokhova

This article reveals the methodological conditions for conceptual modeling of the problem of freedom in the context of philosophical anthropology and philosophy of culture. The author notes that in order to build relevant conceptual research model of freedom problem in the specified context it is required a careful study of the classical approaches to the problem of freedom, the study of the category of "freedom" in cultural-historical perspective, considering the concept of "freedom" through the prism of related philosophical categories and the identification of anthropological sense of freedom.

Keywords: freedom, philosophy, culture, people, philosophical anthropology

References

1. Бердяев Н.А. О назначении человека. М., 1993.
2. Агамов А.А. Проблема свободы в социальной философии // Дис. докт. филос. наук. Ставрополь, 1999.
3. Тульчинский Г.Л. О природе свободы // Вопросы философии. 2006. № 4.
4. Кёстлер А., Камю А. Размышления о смертной казни. М., 2003.
5. Сартр Ж.-П. Бытие и ничто. Опыт феноменологической онтологии / Пер. с фр. / Жан-Поль Сартр. М., 2009.