Assessment of strategic stability in the conditions of economic sanctions

V. Zhigalov

The article considers strategic sustainability as one of the main indicators of development in the conditions of economic sanctions, as well as other challenges of the external environment. The author proposes the main stages of strategic sustainability assessment, with special emphasis on approaches to defining parameters within which the boundaries of sustainability could be determined by various strategic indicators.

Keywords: strategic sustainability, strategic sustainability factors, adverse environmental factors, economic sanctions, strategic sustainability assessment
