

Environment problems in world religions: philosophic aspect

K. Alilova

It is considered some aspects of the relationship between ecology and religion. The main provisions of various religious confessions on this issue are presented, the issue of the moral principle in environmental science and religion is touched upon. World religions are the most massive form of social consciousness. More than half of humanity is under the influence of Christianity, Islam, Buddhism, therefore, religious organizations, clergy, broad masses of believers can play an important role in the struggle to save the world and humanity from an ecological catastrophe. In this period of human history, for various types of religions, it is important to unite their efforts to solve the problem of pollution of nature and human soul and body. It is necessary to coordinate this work for the future of humanity. The article shows the specificity of religious perception of modern environmental problems, an attempt is made to determine the role of religious and ethical principles in the formation of environmental culture.

Keywords: Christianity, Judaism, Buddhism, Islam, nature, society, spiritual values, philosophy, ecology

References

1. Билалов М.И. Дагестан в культуре и цивилизации. Махачкала, 2010. С. 110.
2. Гусейнова Ж.О. Экологические проблемы в исламской теологии. <http://islam.ru/content/nauka/50049> (дата обращения 12.03.2021).
3. Далай-лама. Больше чем религия. Этика для всего мира. М.: Фонд «Сохраним Тибет», 2016. С. 224.
4. Ефремов И. Лезвие бритвы. Махачкала, 1987. С. 630.
5. Кулиев Т. Экологический компонент в христианстве: пути изучения // Родник. Вып. 11. Махачкала: ИПЦ ДГУ, 2010. С. 20-22.
6. Лисеев И.К. Экологическая этика в условиях новой экологической культуры // Философия и этика: сборник научных трудов. М., 2009. С. 730.
7. Уланов М.С. Буддийская культура и экологическое сознание // Вестник Калмыцкого университета. 2017. № 34. С. 162.